

Anevia Appoints Paul Molinier as a Member of its Advisory Board

Anevia, a leading provider of OTT and IPTV software solutions, announces the appointment of Paul Molinier as a member of its Advisory Board, starting from today.

In this role, Paul Molinier will help Anevia define its product and business development strategies. He joins Eric Baron as well as the five members of the Board of Directors – Alexis Delb, Laurent Grimaldi, Valéry Huot (LBO France representative), Laurent Lafarge (CEO) and Tristan Leteurtre (Anevia co-founder) – who are already members of the Advisory Board.

Created in 2015, the Advisory Board gives opinions and recommendations to the Board of Directors on Anevia's industrial and commercial strategy.

Throughout his over 30 years of experience, Paul Molinier has developed an in-depth knowledge of the IT and Telecom industries, in which he has held several leadership roles in both startups and large international corporations. Most recently he spent five years as CEO of Viaccess-Orca, a leading provider of solutions for the TV industry. He holds a degree from Paris' Ecole Polytechnique and an MBA from INSEAD.

"I am excited to welcome Paul Molinier as a member of Anevia's Advisory Board," said Laurent Lafarge, President and CEO. "His insider knowledge of the industry will be a key asset in guiding the company's business development and product choices."

"Anevia is an exciting company to join," says Paul Molinier. "It operates in the high-growth TV-over-IP market for which it offers a comprehensive set of advanced software solutions covering the whole TV value chain. Anevia has strong potential for development, and I'm looking forward to helping the company realise this potential."
